

December 1st 2003

BEST-SELLING AUTHOR HERALDS GLENFIDDICH HIS PERFECT DRAM

-1-

In his first non fiction work “Raw Spirit,” celebrated author Iain Banks searches for the perfect dram and finally concludes he has found it with Glenfiddich Havana Reserve 21 Year Old Scotch Whisky.

The award-winning author of The Wasp Factory and The Crow Road travelled around Scotland in his quest and concludes on the last page of the book: “Ultimately the single malt that most impressed me without being outrageously expensive or simply unavailable was that 21-year-old Glenfiddich Havana Reserve”.

“This is brilliantly different, complex, utterly assured whisky-making of the first order; a drink that tastes unimprovably stunning with no water added, yet maybe even better with a dash.”

Glenfiddich Havana Reserve 21 Year Old offers an intriguing taste sensation created from the distilling expertise of two of the world’s great independent spirits, the Scots and the Cubans.

Resurrecting a lost tradition of maturing Scotch whisky in rum casks, the Glenfiddich Malt Master, David Stewart, has finished Glenfiddich 21 year old single malt in casks that previously held 4 year old Cuban rum, from the beautiful mountainous region of Sancti Spiritus, near the Sierra del Escambray, deep in the heart of Cuba.

“A unique, sweet flavour profile of toffee and banana on the nose, and lime and ginger to taste, Glenfiddich Havana Reserve 21 Year Old is a refreshing and innovative move for single malt Scotch whisky,” says David Stewart.

He added, “It is wonderful to receive such a prized accolade from one of Scotland’s greatest living writers and we are delighted with Iain’s rave review of Glenfiddich.